let me dance, let me feel, let me dream...

www.marinah-ojosdebrujo.com

Marinah was a singer and composer of Ojos de Brujo, the combo that broke musical boundaries mixing rumba and flamenco, with a thousand rhythms from everywhere. Once that adventure was over — which lasted from 1996 to 2013 and left a handful of luminous albums and countless performances inside and outside our borders — she began a solo career, which so far has borne two albums, “El Baile de las Horas” (2013) and “Afrolailo” (2017), in addition to another long duration shared with Chicuelo, “Sintonías” (2015).

Currently, she continues his adventure by joining the Global Bass community, where she feels comfortable mixing folkloric elements and root music elements with the sound of current electronics.

The show is on! — a syncretic communion that encourages unbridled dancing and good vibes between families. Marinah and her people are still keeping the drum beating, and for many years. A full of cheerful songs that unfold comfortably between rumba, reggae and flamenco, between Afro styles and Latin music, between Cuba and hip-hop. cumbia and the sound of current electronics.

AFROLAILO
[KASBA 2017]

'Afrolailo' is full of happy and combative songs, which unfold comfortably between rumba, reggae and flamenco, between Afro styles and Latin music, between Cuba and hip-hop. In this adventure Marinah has been accompanied by a lot of colleagues and great musicians who already accompanied her in Ojos de Brujo.

SINTONIAS
[TALLER DE MÚSICS 2015]
Together they travel across the borders between different roots music, inject them new life without prejudices or ties.

EL BAILE DE LAS HORAS
[MONTUNO 2013]
Fusion of flamenco with styles of the world, pop, digital tango, Latin rhythms, acoustic instrumentation, careful percussion and lyrics made with the soul ...

■ ■ ■ PRESS

“That flamenco and Cuban rumba have similarities with each other was not new to me, but that the crossover lends itself so well to party. This album is for me one of the highlights of this year.”

LATIN WORLD MAGAZINE

“This is a beautiful, diversified, rich and almost elegant album, which is also very well wrapped”.

LUXEMBOURG MAGAZINE

“... to the fullest, flamenco and Catalan rumba work with modern influences ...”

FROOTS MAGAZINE

“... songs with irresistible rumba reggae and Latin rhythms, but the most impressive thing is his glorious voice” | CULTURAL MAGAZINE NETHERLANDS

“... a mix of flamenco, rumba, mestizo, rap and hip-hop, through the throat of an impressive appearance like that of Marinah ... So this is an essential concert for your summer parties!”
