N3rdistan és una banda francomarroquina que reconsidera i mescla diverses dimensions, temps, cultures, estils i instruments. Hip-hop, rap, electro-rock fins a les melodies àrabs més tradicionals, amb la veu del desconcertant i fascinant Walead Ben Selim. Musiquen vells poetes com poemes de la seva pròpia autoria. D'intensitat i potència disruptives, les actuacions de N3rdistan son elogiades i referenciades per la premsa allà on vagin.

YACINE BELAHCENE

With Idurar, Yacine Belahcene proclaims part of its origins, with a modern and powerful sound.

TOP

Yacine Belahcene continues his way through music traveling between his two cultures, Algerian and Catalan... Idurar, his last album, reaches our coasts sailing through the Mediterranean claiming its musicality with no hang-ups and with sounds that resonate in the harbours of Algiers, Marseille, or Barcelona, claiming the mix in its naturalness, with no artificial deceits or hang-ups with songs that expand beyond folk and traditional indigenous music, with powerful electronic elements that bring it closer to urban music.

Original compositions, compact and overwhelming sound, European and avant-garde jazz...

After 21 years together, and hundreds of concerts around the world, pianist Manuel Gutierrez, double bassist Xacobe Martínez Antelo and drummer L.A.R. Legido, give birth to “SUMRRA. 7 VISIÓNS” that involves the consolidation of a unique way of understanding live music. A maturity and an almost inconceivable freshness today, that makes of the trio of Galician Jazz, a cult group that has been adding followers throughout all these years, through its albums, its concerts and its tours.

Among the most relevant names of the new generation of spanish jazzmen, pianist and composer José Carra stands out by his own merits. He defends a stylistic eclecticism where jazz meets rock and classical music. Poetry also plays a key role in his compositions, creating a very personal and recognizable universe. Carra deploy his full potential on the piano, immerses himself in his personal world of sound made up of original compositions, reinterpretations of music from all genres and improvisations.

Mélodie Gimard is a French pianist, composer and arranger living in Barcelona. The creativity and virtuosity of this young pianist is clear, both in her musical arrangements and in the sensitivity of her touch. NUMEN, her debut album is an original project where she blends Flamenco with Jazz and Classical music with an utterly elegant and contemporary approach. In Latin the word Numen means spiritual presence, and the album title refers to freedom of expression and inspiration.

The Dice Player tells in music & singings the eponymous poem of the Palestinian Mahmoud Darwish. The poetries resound in Arabic through the interpretation of the Moroccan French artist Walid Ben Selim, also member of the group N3rdistan.

The qanoun of Nidhal Jaoua and the piano of Agathe Di Piro dialogue and underline the games of destiny & hasard described in the poem. The trio is guided by Darwish' words, instruments vibrate charmed by poetic conjuration and musicality of language.

Mû Mbanda is allied with Cristobal Montesdeoca to offer their particular (re)vision of those songs that have accompanied him throughout his life, a repertoire with the music of some of the most celebrated composers of Guinea Bissau as well as elements of own authorship.

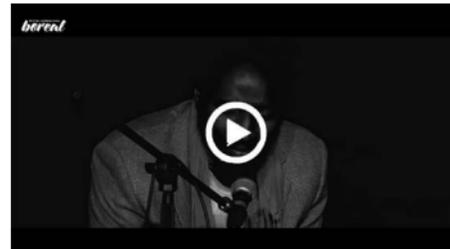

Mû's voice comes as a whisper, like a light breeze at dawn. It is a choice that goes beyond aesthetic taste, sing from what is small, go for what's subtle.

With their three voices and instruments – guitar, piano, and percussion – the Aca Seca Trio has found the heart of South America in the sublime possibilities of its folkloric and popular music. With songs written by their own Juan Quintero and esteemed composers from Uruguay and their native Argentina, the trio's vocals blend and glide over Latin rhythms to create a thoroughly modern sonority that echoes the spirit of their continent's rich heritage
